

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a brush assembly (1) comprising a retaining body (3), which is held by a retaining handle (2) and to which a cleaning element (4) can be fixed in a first functional position. The cleaning element (4) can be transferred from the first functional position into at least one second functional position.